Silence of Town Planning Officials Raises Questions Over Illegal Constructions

NARRA SRINIVAS REDDY (NSR), Medchal- Malkajgiri Staff Reporter, January 20, (INDIAN CHRONICLE):“?“?“?Serious concerns are being raised over the apparent inaction of the Deputy Commissioner and Town Planning officials regarding alleged large-scale illegal constructions in the Boduppal GHMC Circle. Reports suggest that massive unauthorised shed structures have come up adjacent to Chengicherla Tulips area, allegedly in violation of Town Planning norms and TG-BPASS regulations. Despite the visibility of these constructions, enforcement action appears to be absent, prompting public questions about the effectiveness of regulatory mechanisms. Residents and civil society groups are questioning whether Town Planning duties are being compromised, and whether existing laws are being adequately enforced. The TG-BPASS system, introduced to ensure transparency and planned development, is reportedly being bypassed in several locations within the Boduppal Circle. In Peerzadiguda limits, concerns have been voiced over the role and accountability of Chainmen appointed to monitor and control unauthorised constructions. Citizens are demanding clarity on the responsibilities entrusted to these officials and the measures taken to prevent violations. Allegations of unchecked illegal construction activity under the supervision of Town Planning staff have sparked public debate on administrative oversight and governance. Locals are urging GHMC authorities to conduct thorough inspections, ensure strict enforcement of building regulations, and take corrective action wherever violations are found. Urban planning experts stress that failure to curb illegal constructions not only undermines the rule of law but also poses long-term risks to infrastructure, safety, and sustainable development. Corporation (GHMC) reorganisation process.“In this context, leaders from various political parties at the central level—including BJP, BRS, TDP, CPM and CPI—met Malkajgiri Member of Parliament Etela Rajender and submitted a memorandum, discussing the issues related to the Uppal Division. Local residents and party leaders explained the situation in detail to the MP.“The leaders pointed out that while most divisions have an average of 32,000 to 45,000 voters, the Uppal Division alone has as many as 72,000 voters, which they described as clear discrimination. They further stated that although the government has promised to allocate ₹2 crore per division, this amount is inadequate for a division with such a large population and extensive area, making it difficult to carry out development works effectively. Responding to the concerns, MP Etela Rajender explained that if the Uppal Division is bifurcated into two separate divisions, it would enable greater availability of development funds. He stated that such a move would accelerate development in key sectors including roads, drainage, education, and healthcare in the local areas.

Ankireddypally Main Road Turns Into Death Trap Authorities Remain Apathetic

NARRA SRINIVAS REDDY (NSR), Medchal- Malkajgiri Staff Reporter, January 20, (INDIAN CHRONICLE): The Ankireddypally main road, located near the Outer Ring Road under Keesara Circle of Medchal-Malkajgiri district, has deteriorated into a dangerous stretch, exposing the complete failure of civic authorities. Despite being a crucial route for heavy vehicles and daily commuters, the road has been left in a severely damaged condition, filled with deep potholes and loose stones. Hundreds of lorries and other heavy vehicles use this road every day. With stones protruding from the surface and large craters forming across the stretch, commuters are forced to travel under constant fear of accidents. Two-wheeler riders and pedestrians are the worst affected, risking their lives on what has effectively become an accident-prone zone. Local residents allege that the road was ignored during the previous BRS government and continues to be neglected even after the change in government. Political promises and administrative responsibility appear to have vanished, while officials remain silent spectators to the worsening condition of the road. Even after the area was merged into the Greater Hyderabad limits, basic infrastructure remains absent. Broken electric poles, overgrown tree branches and the absence of streetlights have further increased the danger, especially during night hours. Residents question whether the authorities are waiting for a fatal accident before taking action. The continued negligence has triggered public anger, with locals demanding immediate repairs and permanent restoration of the Ankireddypally main road. They warn that if authorities fail to act promptly, they will be forced to launch protests to draw attention to the issue.

Stitching Awareness Into Lives: Sanjeevani Launches 'The Pink Tag Project'

Turning Everyday Moments Into Life-Saving Reminders

Hyderabad: The third edition of Sanjeevani: United Against Cancer – a transformative initiative by Federal Bank Hormis Memorial Foundation, News18 Network, and knowledge partner Tata Trusts, launches The Pink Tag Project, a pioneering behavioral change campaign that meets women in their most personal, intimate moments to remind them that self-care is not a luxury - it is survival.

A Wake Up Call.

In India, every four minutes, a woman is diagnosed with breast cancer. Every eight minutes, a woman loses her life to the disease. In small towns and villages where awareness remains low and stigma run high, conversations around breast health are almost non-existent. Women rarely find time for themselves - caught between household chores, earning livelihoods, and caring for families. Until a crisis forces their hand, their personal health remains invisible, postponed, forgotten.

A Tag that Tugs

The Pink Tag Project is born from a single insight: the most intimate moment in a woman's day - when she gets dressed - can become the most powerful reminder to check her own health.

The solution is elegantly simple. A small, pink-colored tag with clear instructions for self-breast examination is stitched inside every blouse, kurta, or innerwear - right next to the wash-care tag. Placed exactly where women are alone, focused entirely on themselves, the Pink Tag becomes an unavoidable, intimate reminder. Not a campaign that demands their time or attention, nor a seminar they need to attend. Just a whisper, stitched into the fabric of their daily lives.

Stitching Awareness, One Garment at a Time

The Pink Tag Project is documented in a powerful short film that captures the journey from insight to action. Voiced by acclaimed actor Sheeba Chaddha, the film opens with the harsh reality - every four minutes, a woman in India is diagnosed with breast cancer, yet the silence in small towns is deafening. It shows women doing what they do every day: drawing water, sweeping courtyards, preparing meals, getting dressed.

An unintrusive reminder

Then comes the revelation. In that intimate moment - fastening blouse hooks, adjusting saree pleats, slipping into a kurta - the Pink Tag appears. A quiet, persistent reminder. Women notice. They read. They ask questions. Local volunteers, trained and trusted, explain. Families talk. Daughters show it to mothers. Granddaughters remind grandmothers. What began as a curiosity becomes a conversation becomes a movement.

Talking about the initiative, M V S Murthy, Chief Marketing Officer of Federal Bank said, "At Federal Bank Hormis Memorial Foundation, we believe that real change doesn't come from heightened campaigns. It comes from interventions that whisper, consistently, intimately, and with empathy.

The Pink Tag Project is a testament to the power of behavioral design. By partnering with local tailors and volunteers, we've turned a simple garment into a life-saving tool. This is not charity - this is empowerment. This is about meeting women where they are, in their daily lives, and giving them the agency to protect themselves. When self-care becomes routine, survival becomes possible. The Pink Tag Project, underlines the consistency of our approach to communities. Always for a reason, consistent and long term."

Gaurav Gupta and MG SELECT Unveil a Sculptural Interpretation of MG Cyberster

Hyderabad Bringing couture sensibilities into the automotive realm, Gaurav Gupta has partnered with MG SELECT to bring forth a one-of-its-kind artistic interpretation of the MG Cyberster, World's fastest MG reimagined through the language of couture, sculpture, and contemporary craft. Unveiled on January 17, 2026 at the launch of Gaurav Gupta's first menswear flagship store at DLF Emporio, New Delhi, the collaboration marks the designer's expansion into menswear retail and celebrates a moment where fashion, art and automotive design converge.

At the heart of the collaboration is the MG Cyberster – the convertible sportscar capable of accelerating from 0 to 100 kmph in 3.2 seconds. Cyberster's stance evokes openness, movement, and emotional freedom, creating a parallel with Gaurav Gupta's fluid yet form-driven aesthetic.

Conceptualised over six months, the creative philosophy transforms the vehicle into a sculptural object where craftsmanship and industrial innovation coexist seamlessly. Inspired by speed interpreted through an Art Nouveau lens, the form translates motion into a striking visual language. Drawing from surrealism and the natural contours of the human body, the car is envisioned as a moving artwork rather than a static object.

A bespoke car artwork brought to life by Gaurav Gupta interprets his signature visual identity through organic forms and tonal gradients that flow seamlessly across the body. Articulated through brocade patchwork with accents of zari embroidery, the detailing brings together ancient craft traditions and heritage techniques with the precision of contemporary engineering. Further elevating the concept, the car features a custom embroidered hood bearing the Serpent Infinity motif, a symbol that has recurred across Gaurav Gupta's collections and evolved into a defining house code since its introduction at his Paris showcase Aarohanam. The coiled serpent signifies Kundalini energy, continuity and infinite transformation.

Flipkart Deepens Marketplace Governance Framework to Strengthen Trust, Accountability, and Platform Integrity

Hyderabad: Flipkart, India's homegrown e-commerce marketplace, continues to invest in and strengthen its compliance governance framework to ensure fairness, authenticity, and trust across the platform. These systems are designed to operate with consistent standards, internal control, and audit-ready processes across the organisation. This proactive, layered approach is critical for governing a marketplace with millions of listings and over 1.4 million sellers. By combining sophisticated technology, structured human oversight, and formalized compliance policies, Flipkart maintains a trusted, well-governed environment, enabling genuine businesses to thrive and ensuring customers receive safe, quality products.

Flipkart's first line of defense is a standardized, risk-based onboarding and monitoring system designed to prevent non-compliant and fraudulent sellers from entering or operating on the platform.

Advanced Seller Vetting

New sellers onboarding with Flipkart are vetted using a risk-based model that moves beyond document submission. In addition to GSTIN and PAN checks, the onboarding system verifies the seller's device, address, and pincode against historic fraud patterns using internal data models. All GST details undergo two-factor authentication, helping prevent misuse of credentials. These checks are further supported by fraud linkage analysis, ensuring that sellers with prior violations cannot re-enter the platform.

Accountability & Real-Time Monitoring Flipkart's monitoring architecture pairs AI-led scale with human supervision and auditability, ensuring that automation is embedded within documented review processes, audit trails, and escalation protocols. The company's real-time infringement scanning system identifies text and logo infringements on products using detection models, leading to manual validation and subsequent delisting of confirmed infringing items. Additionally, the Marketplace Quality Control team scans millions of listings monthly to ensure compliance with relevant regulatory requirements.

In addition to tech-based measures, Flipkart conducts on-ground seller inspections and geo-tagged address verification, including surprise audits of certain sellers for whom heightened observation is indicated. To amplify vigilance across the ecosystem, Flipkart has also launched an internal employee campaign that enables employees to identify and report seller or consumer abuse patterns ranging from fake listings and multi-account misuse to return manipulation and promotional fraud.
