Global Desktop 3D Printing Leader Bambu Lab Expands India Presence with A2L Launch

“Hyderabad “Bambu Lab, the world's No. 1 desktop 3D printer brand by sales volume for three consecutive years, today formally introduced its brand in India with the launch of the A2L, its largest-format open-bed desktop 3D printer to date. The announcement marks a significant milestone in the company's India journey, reinforcing its long-term commitment to one of the world's fastest-growing communities of creators, educators, designers and small businesses while expanding access to its integrated 3D printing ecosystem. “For nearly two years, Indian makers, educators, designers and small businesses have been creating with Bambu Lab machines through the company's authorized channel partner network. That growth happened organically, with a steadily expanding community discovering the brand through its reputation for delivering fast, reliable and easy-to-use desktop 3D printing solutions, well before Bambu Lab formally introduced itself in the country. Building on that momentum, the company is now strengthening its presence in India with the launch of the A2L. “Commenting on the announcement, Leo Wang, Country Head, Bambu Lab, said, “India has emerged as one of the most exciting markets for innovation, creativity and digital manufacturing. Over the past two years, we've seen strong organic adoption of our products through our channel partners, giving us confidence in the potential of this market. With the launch of the A2L we're excited to deepen our commitment to India by making advanced desktop 3D printing more accessible to creators, educators, entrepreneurs and professionals alike. “Rather than simply increasing the size of the print bed, the A2L has been engineered to bridge the gap between standard desktop printers and significantly more expensive professional systems. Its 330 × 320 × 325 mm build volume offers 105% more printable space than standard 256 mm-class printers, allowing users to create larger objects, print more parts simultaneously and complete projects without dividing them into multiple sections.
