Farmers Must Be Sensitized to Cultivate Crops Requiring Limited Water During Rabi Season

““Collector Ila Tripathi““Nizamabad, October 09:INDIAN CRONICLE Collector Ila Tripathi directed officials to create widespread awareness among farmers to cultivate crops requiring limited water (semi-dry crops) during the Rabi season, given the low water availability in reservoirs caused by deficient rainfall linked to the El Niño effect. On Friday evening, State Chief Secretary Sanjay Jaju held a video conference from Hyderabad with District Collectors and senior officials from various departments to discuss several issues. Speaking on the occasion, the Chief Secretary noted that since a large number of laborers are turning up for works under the 'Vibi Jeeramji' scheme, projects that yield long-term benefits should be undertaken. He emphasized the need for water conservation efforts—such as the large-scale construction of farm ponds and soak pits—as part of the 'Telangana ku Jalasiri' program. He instructed officials to take proactive measures to ensure uninterrupted power supply and to prevent any wastage in drinking water distribution. He also ordered the timely submission of comprehensive data regarding rainfall and other departmental activities. Following the video conference, Collector Ila Tripathi issued specific instructions to the officials, noting that insufficient rainfall has led to inadequate water storage in reservoirs and raised the risk of depleting groundwater levels. He stated that since cultivating paddy under these conditions poses a risk of difficulties, officials should explain the ground reality to farmers and encourage them to sow crops that require less water (irrigated dry crops). Additional Collectors Raja Goud and Bhujanga Rao, DRO Geetha, and officials from relevant departments participated in the video conference.

BRS questions BJP's development record in Karimnagar

Party seeks white paper on funds secured for the city; challenges Bandi Sanjay on Smart City project funding.

Karimnagar October 09, Khaja Sikandar Mohiuddin (Correspondent): The Bharat Rashtra Samithi (BRS) has criticised the BJP-led administration in the Karimnagar Municipal Corporation, alleging that it has failed to deliver on development despite being in power for eight months.

At a press conference at Hotel Nakshatra here on Friday, BRS city president Challa Harishankar and former Mayor Sardar Ravinder Singh demanded that Union Minister of State for Home Affairs Bandi Sanjay Kumar release a white paper detailing the funds and projects he had secured specifically for Karimnagar.

The BRS leaders alleged that the BJP was taking credit for development works sanctioned during the previous BRS regime and by the State government. They also accused the ruling party of focusing on publicity rather than addressing civic issues.

Mr. Ravinder Singh challenged Mr. Sanjay to swear at the Durgamata temple that the funds for the Smart City project had been secured solely through his efforts. He alleged that the BJP was relying on press conferences and publicity campaigns instead of addressing the city's problems.

The BRS leaders also claimed that nearly 150 youths from Kisan Nagar had joined their party, citing their confidence in the leadership of former Minister and Karimnagar MLA Gangula Kamalakar. They alleged that the development had unsettled the BJP leadership and predicted that more BJP corporators would switch to the BS. These claims were not independently verified.

Defending Mr. Kamalakar, the BRS leaders credited him with the city's development during his tenure as MLA and warned BJP leaders against personal attacks on him. They said political criticism should focus on policies and performance rather than individuals.

The leaders also criticised former Mayor Sunil Rao, accusing him of switching between the Congress, BRS and BJP for political gains. They questioned his credibility for criticising Mr. Kamalakar after having been associated with different parties.

Former Library Corporation chairman Ponnam Anil Kumar Goud, corporators Guggilla Jayashree Srinivas, Yousuf, Ali, Gade Roopa Srinivas and Jammu, former corporators, division presidents, party functionaries and BRS workers attended the press conference.
