

Treat people's grievances as family issues, Revanth Reddy tells officials.

Karimnagar September 30, Khaja Sikandar Mohiuddin (Correspondent): Chief Minister A. Revanth Reddy on Wednesday urged government employees to treat the problems of people who approach government offices as those of their own family members and ensure that the poorest sections benefited from welfare schemes and development programmes.

Inaugurating the ₹51-crore Integrated District Collectorate here, Mr. Revanth Reddy said the facility should instil confidence among poor people who came to the government with problems, distress and helplessness.

The Collectorate should be used to untangle the problems of the poor and provide them with a sense of assurance, he said.

"Government employees should work as representatives of the government to ensure that the benefits of welfare schemes and development programmes reach the most deprived sections," he said.

The Chief Minister said the performance of government employees was crucial to the reputation of the government. Governments might enact laws, sanction funds and issue permissions, but it was the employees who ultimately had to ensure that their benefits reached the people, he said.

Mr. Revanth Reddy said around 10.5 lakh people were working in the State through permanent, contractual and outsourcing arrangements and providing services to a population of about four crore.

He said roughly 3% of the employees were responsible for delivering services to 97% of the population, making their job one involving considerable responsibility and dedication.

The Chief Minister said the government was addressing employees' concerns relating to salaries, retirement benefits, promotions, transfers and health security cards.

He recalled that when the Congress government assumed office, the State had been in a situation where salaries could not always be paid on the first of the month. The government was now resolving employees' problems one by one, he said.

He urged employees to continue serving people while pursuing the resolution of their own problems.

Mr. Revanth Reddy said the State government would maintain cordial relations with the Centre and seek its co-operation for projects and approvals required for Telangana's development.

Referring to the ₹840 crore development works being taken up in Karimnagar under the Urban Challenge Fund with the Centre's support, he said seeking the required environmental clearances, he said.

Even after spending hundreds of crores of rupees on irrigation projects, the expenditure would be rendered futile if the necessary permissions were not obtained for their utilisation, he said.

Begumpet airport in an area where the runway had posed an obstacle to road construction, he said.

The State government would construct elevated corridors at an estimated cost of ₹5,000 crore and they would be available within a year, he said.

Mr. Revanth Reddy said ideological differences could be set aside and political leaders could work together for the development of the people.

During his visit, the Chief Minister laid foundation stones for several development works estimated at ₹1,096.22 crore and inaugurated projects worth ₹28.70 crore.

The works launched included three Telangana Public Schools at ₹29.62 crore; various Karimnagar Municipal Corporation works under the Urban Challenge Fund at ₹840 crore; underground drainage works under the UIDF Public Health Scheme at ₹180 crore; storm-water drainage works under KSCCL special grants at ₹21.60 crore; and a multi-level car parking facility at ₹25 crore.

He inaugurated the Central Library building constructed at ₹5.70 crore, the integrated vegetable and non-vegetable market at Kashmir Gadda at ₹6.50 crore, and the Integrated Command Control Centre and Disaster Response Force offices at ₹16.50 crore.

Mr. Revanth Reddy also unveiled a Telangana Thalli statue at the Collectorate and visited the District Collector's chamber.

He said he would visit Karimnagar again to conduct a comprehensive review of development, welfare and irrigation projects in the district.

District Collector Chitra Mishra, Police Commissioner Gaush Alam, Minister in-charge of the erstwhile Karimnagar district Tummala Nageswara Rao, Ministers Ponnampalabakkar, Duddilla Sridhar Babu, Adluri Laxman Kumar and Ponguleti Srinivas Reddy, TPCC president Mahesh Kumar Goud, MLAs Medipally Satyam and Kavvampally Satyanarayana, MLC Malk Komuriah and other public representatives and senior officials attended the programme.

Responding to criticism over his frequent visits to Delhi, Mr. Revanth Reddy said he would visit the national capital as many times as required to resolve issues concerning Telangana.

The Chief Minister said the Cantonment area had remained a bottleneck for traffic between Hyderabad and northern Telangana districts, including Karimnagar and Nizamabad.

He said successive governments had attempted to resolve the issue but without success.

After assuming office in December 2023, his government secured the transfer of 170 acres of defence land for road construction in the Cantonment area within six months, he said.

The Centre had also permitted construction of a tunnel road near there was no hesitation in acknowledging the Centre's contribution to development.

"Politics is during elections. At other times, we should maintain cordial relations with the Centre and secure the works required for the State," he said.

The Chief Minister thanked Union Minister of State for Home Affairs Bandi Sanjay for his support to the development of Karimnagar city.

Mr. Revanth Reddy said the Gouravelli reservoir was 98% complete and that the remaining works had been held up because of a case in the Supreme Court.

Following a favourable judgment recently, the State government had approached the Union Jal Shakti Minister

TANHA seeks changes to new EHS policy

“Hyderabad Correspondent, September 30 (Indian Chronicle):” The Telangana Network Hospitals Association (TANHA) has sought wider consultation with private network hospitals in the formulation and implementation of the new Employee Health Scheme (EHS), citing concerns over package rates, pending payments and gaps in the earlier system. Addressing a media conference at the Hyderabad Press Club, TANHA State President Dr Vaddiraju Rakesh said the new policy should be framed through a transparent and scientific process, taking into account the practical experience of hospitals delivering healthcare under government schemes. The association said the earlier EHS system suffered from inadequate consultation with network hospitals, limited beneficiary coverage, absence of a regular package-rate revision mechanism and implementation-related difficulties. It also sought representation for network hospitals in policy and decision-making bodies. TANHA claimed that Aarogyasri and other healthcare scheme payments had remained pending for 14-15 months in some cases, with total dues reportedly estimated at Rs 2,000-2,500 crore. It urged authorities to expedite clearance of the outstanding amounts. The association called for treatment packages to be scientifically priced based on actual costs, including medicines, equipment, infrastructure, consumables and manpower. It also sought a time-bound grievance redressal mechanism and a special meeting with AHCT officials and hospital representatives. TANHA said it was ready for dialogue with the government and sought a mutually sustainable framework for uninterrupted healthcare services.

Different Tobacco Policies, Shared Public-Health Challenge: The India-Japan Opportunity

“Hyderabad:” “As New Delhi and Tokyo deepen a strategic partnership spanning semiconductors, clean energy and pharmaceuticals, tobacco control remains one area where the two countries have deliberately taken different paths.” When Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi and Prime Minister Narendra Modi met in New Delhi in July for the 16th India-Japan Annual Summit, their joint statement covered critical minerals, clean energy, pharmaceuticals and biotechnology. Health featured prominently; tobacco control did not. Yet the subject offers a useful window into how two major Asian economies are navigating a fast-evolving nicotine landscape. “Japan has run one of the world's most closely watched real-world experiments in tobacco control. Since 2014, heated tobacco devices — which heat rather than burn tobacco — have grown to account for roughly a quarter of the country's tobacco market by volume.” Research has tracked what followed. A Tobacco Control study using retail sales data across 11 of Japan's 12 regions found that cigarette sales, already declining since 2011, fell more rapidly after heated tobacco products went nationwide — the rate of decline accelerated roughly fivefold, researchers estimated. A separate analysis in the International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health reached a similar conclusion using different data, while cautioning that sales figures alone cannot confirm whether individual smokers switched products or whether other factors drove the decline. Japan's Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare has separately studied indoor air quality linked to heated tobacco aerosol, reporting substantially lower exposure levels than cigarette smoke in designated smoking rooms — while stressing that lower exposure does not mean the products are safe. “Dr. Hiroya Kumamaru, Cardiovascular Surgeon and Vice Director at AOI International Hospital, Kawasaki, has tracked the shift since it began. “This recent phenomenon of tobacco harm reduction in Japan proves that technology and innovation can accelerate the decline of smoking and reduce the enormous health burden caused by tobacco. It also shows that culturally appropriate solutions, adapted to national contexts, can work at scale. Japan should defend this achievement on the world stage. With smoking still a leading cause of disease and death worldwide, our experience provides a valuable model for other countries. Japan has already shown extraordinary results by allowing millions of smokers to choose a less harmful option.” “India has taken a different route.
