Farmers need banks' support in drought conditions:-

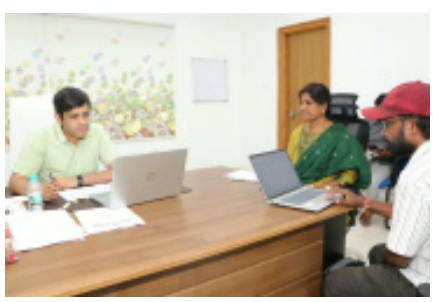

Yadadri Bhuvanagiri District Collector Anurag Jayanti

““(Bhuvanagiri.. Indian Chronicle.. November 4):- Farmers are facing serious difficulties this year due to the reduced rainfall due to the effect of El Nino, and banks should support farmers through loans in such situations, District Collector Anurag Jayanti suggested. On Wednesday, the District Collector held a Special District Consultative Committee (Special DCC) meeting with bankers through video conference. In the wake of the government declaring 17 mandals in the district as drought-affected mandals, they reviewed with bank officials on issues such as providing financial relief to farmers, restructuring of agricultural loans, sanctioning new crop loans, etc. Speaking on the occasion, the District Collector said that due to drought conditions, crop yields have decreased and many farmers are facing crop losses due to shortage of irrigation water. In this context, the bank officials were instructed to provide relief to eligible farmers through restructuring of agricultural loans as per the guidelines of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and the State Level Bankers Committee (SLBC). In addition to providing a 12-month moratorium to eligible farmers as per the rules, steps were suggested to be taken to extend the repayment period of loans to a maximum of 24 to 60 months. It was stated that clear guidelines on this would be received by the banks soon. He said that the process of converting eligible short-term crop loans into medium-term loans with interest should be undertaken and that loan repayments should be made as per the prescribed schedule after the moratorium. Along with loan restructuring, the banks were instructed to sanction new crop loans and working capital loans required by the farmers for cultivation of subsequent crops in a timely manner. He was instructed to act with a humanitarian attitude without putting any pressure or threats on the farmers in the matter of loan recovery and not to resort to forced loan recovery in the case of eligible farmers in drought-affected areas.“ The Agriculture Department officials were instructed to identify eligible farmers and their loan accounts village-wise and mandal-wise in coordination with the banks. Farmers were advised to be made aware of the rules and benefits of loan restructuring through farmer forums, gram sabhas and financial literacy camps.“They were also advised to make farmers aware of the crop insurance and other government insurance schemes available to them. The District Collector on this occasion directed that banks should work in coordination with government departments to provide financial security to farmers in the district during drought conditions and for the development of agriculture and allied sectors, and to complete the process within the specified time limit so that eligible farmers get the benefits of loan restructuring.“District Agriculture Department Officer Venkatram Reddy, DRDO Nagi Reddy, Animal Husbandry Department Officer Sridhar, RBI AGM Hemalatha, Lead Bank Manager Veeranna, NABARD DDM Jhansi Rani Kasarla, officials of various banks, and others participated in this review.

District Collector Anurag Jayanti reviewed crop diversification, housing construction and rural development works in agriculture through video conference

““(Yadadri Bhuvanagiri District Bureau.. Indian Chronicle.. November 4):- On Wednesday, District Collector Anurag Jayanti held a meeting with the officials of the relevant departments through video conference on the second phase of the munaga cultivation, housing construction scheme sanctioned under the auspices of the Agriculture Department, and the implementation of the VB-G RAM G scheme. On this occasion, he suggested that priority should be given to crop diversification in agriculture, keeping in mind the El Nino conditions, and that farmers should be made aware of the cultivation of alternative crops. He instructed the officials of the Agriculture and Horticulture Department to explain the benefits of munaga cultivation to farmers and encourage interested farmers. He also reviewed the details of the eligible beneficiaries, progress and next steps regarding the sanction of houses in the second phase of the housing construction scheme. He suggested that the concerned officials should monitor the field level so that the construction of the sanctioned houses can start quickly. Even if they are eligible in the mandals, the beneficiaries of roof replacement can be identified and the gazetted officer can come and verify the lists and send them. He warned that action will be taken if irregularities are committed in Indiramma houses. The work to be undertaken under the VB-G RAM G scheme, employment generation in rural areas, identification of works necessary for the development of villages, implementation and progress of the works were reviewed. He instructed the officials to undertake the works in a planned manner according to the needs of the villages and complete the set targets within the deadline. He wanted to see that the number of laborers increased. He wanted the mandal specific officials to organize meetings and find out the problems. He wanted to take steps to prevent drinking water problems in the villages. Panchayat engineering officers want Anganwadi, Vivo, Gram Panchayat, and school compound wall works to be completed quickly. DRDO Nagi Reddy, Agriculture Officer Ramana Reddy, Housing PD Alivelu, DHSO, Mandal Agriculture Officers, Horticulture Department Officers, MPDOs, APOs, Housing DEEs, AEs, etc. participated in this meeting.

Opportunity to earn high income with low investment through groundnut cultivation. .. Companies interested in purchasing groundnut crop:-District Collector Anurag Jayanti

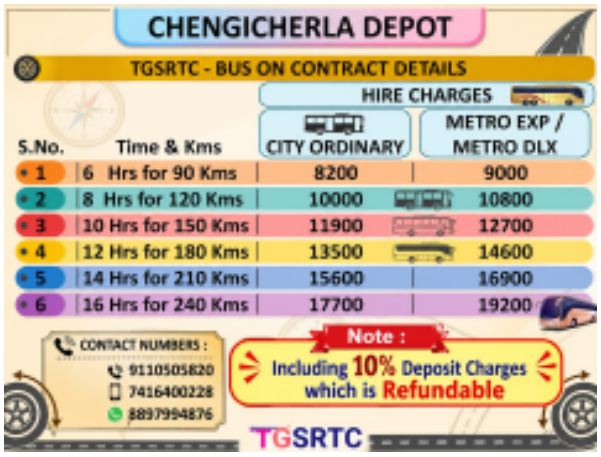

"(Bhuvanagiri..Indian Chronicle..November 4):- Keeping in mind the changes in weather conditions due to the effect of El Nino, District Collector Anurag Jayanti suggested that farmers should prioritize crop diversification and take up cultivation of alternative crops that provide high income with low water consumption. On Wednesday, the District Collector visited the garden of farmer Mahender Rao, who is cultivating groundnut on an area of ??15 acres in Bollepalli village of Bhuvanagiri mandal. On this occasion, he spoke to the farmer and inquired about the method of cultivating tunga, investment cost, crop yield, marketing opportunities and income details. On this occasion, farmer Mahender Rao said that one acre of tunga cultivation yields 600 kg in the first year, 2,000 kg in the second year, and 4,000 kg in the third year, resulting in a total yield of 6,600 kg of dried tunga leaves in three years. He explained that the current market price of a kg of dried tunga leaves is about Rs. 100, and thus there is a possibility of earning an income of up to Rs. 6.60 lakh per acre in three years. He said that compared to paddy cultivation, one can earn more income through tunga cultivation. The farmer requested the collector to provide a buyback guarantee for the tunga crop. Responding to this, the collector spoke to representatives of Tata, Unicorn and Botanica companies on the spot over the phone and discussed the possibilities of purchasing the tunga crop. Representatives of the organizations who responded positively to this expressed interest in purchasing the tunga crop. The Collector said that the government will provide necessary facilities like digging holes and supplying tunga seedlings to the farmers who are taking up tunga cultivation under the VB-G RAM G scheme. Similarly, steps will be taken to provide drip irrigation facility through government subsidy. In the current climatic conditions, the Collector suggested that farmers should focus on cultivating alternative crops along with traditional crops like rice and select crops considering low water consumption, cultivation costs and marketing opportunities. He said that through crop diversification, agricultural income can be increased and the losses caused by climate change can be reduced. District Agriculture Officer Ramana Reddy, Assistant Agriculture Director, Agriculture Officer, Agricultural Extension Officers (AEOs) and many farmers participated in this program.

Artificial Intelligence can make classroom teaching more effective: C. Parthasarathi

Former State Election Commissioner stresses integration of technology with teachers' expertise.

Karimnagar November 04, Khaja Sikandar Mohiuddin (Correspondent): Former State Election Commissioner and retired IAS officer C. Parthasarathi said Artificial Intelligence (AI) could play a significant role in improving the quality of education by making classroom teaching more effective, accessible and engaging.

Addressing a workshop on 'Artificial Intelligence for Better Learning', organised by the district administration at the Collectorate auditorium in Karimnagar on Wednesday, he said integrating teachers' expertise with emerging technologies would help improve learning outcomes.

As many as 330 Mathematics, Physics and Biology teachers from 98 government schools in the district participated in the workshop. Mr. Parthasarathi demonstrated the practical applications of AI and urged teachers to develop a sound understanding of the technology to keep students abreast of global developments.He said AI should be used as a supportive tool to simplify lessons and make teaching more interactive. Teachers could deliver better education by combining effective teaching practices with technological advancements, he added.

Recalling his association with Karimnagar, Mr. Parthasarathi said he had contributed to the district's development, particularly in the education sector, during his tenure as Collector.Collector Chitra Mishra said teachers should adapt their teaching methods to changing times and explore ways to simplify routine tasks using AI. Students should be introduced to the technology at an early age, particularly in rural areas, she said, stressing the need to improve AI awareness among school, Intermediate and degree students.

Additional Collector Ashwini Tanaji Wakade, SCERT Director Ramesh, RDO Sharmila and other education department officials attended the workshop.

NIMS Faculty Body Demands Fair Probe into Corruption Allegations, Opposes Collective Blame

""Hyderabad Correspondent, November 4 (Indian Chronicle): The NIMS Faculty Association (NIMSFA) has condemned alleged corruption and financial irregularities at Nizam's Institute of Medical Sciences (NIMS), Hyderabad, while calling for a transparent and impartial investigation against those involved. In a statement, the association expressed concern over media reports allegedly presenting unverified claims and rumours as established facts, saying such coverage could damage the institution's reputation and the professional credibility of its faculty. It objected to allegations against individuals being generalised to the entire faculty, stressing that responsibility must be determined on the basis of evidence and individual accountability. NIMSFA said it would not defend proven misconduct and demanded strict legal action against anyone found guilty following due process. It also highlighted the contributions of NIMS faculty to medical education, research and patient care, particularly services to economically weaker sections. The association reaffirmed its commitment to transparency, accountability, ethical medical practice and institutional integrity.

“““““Hyderabad: “““““India's No. 1 tractor export brand Sonalika Tractors has set an impressive benchmark by clocking its highest-ever YTM overall sales of 1,21,148 tractors in Apr-Oct'26. The historic performance is underpinned by the company's unprecedented pace in the domestic market that saw Sonalika achieve 1 lakh tractor sales in the shortest-ever timeframe. In its grand 30th anniversary year, the performance reflects its extraordinary appetite for growth and an ever-expanding vision for the future of agriculture that consistently translates bold ambitions into exceptional business outcomes.““Sharing his thoughts on the new performance, Mr Raman Mittal, Joint Managing Director, International Tractors Limited, said, “Our highest ever YTM overall sales of 1,21,148 tractors underscores one of the most remarkable chapters in our 30-year journey and our collective strength that we have developed across markets. This is driven by our fastest ever 1 lakh tractor sales clocked in the domestic market this year, underlining the sheer intensity with which we have delivered on every frontier.“ “At the heart of this progression is Sonalika's combination of strategic foresight, world class manufacturing excellence, market responsiveness and an organisation-wide commitment to excellence. Its progressive approach brings together advanced agricultural technologies, application-specific engineering and transparent business practices to ensure the right agricultural solutions reach farmers at the right time. Backed by its World's Largest Integrated Tractor Manufacturing Plant at Hoshiarpur, Punjab, the new milestone also strengthens Sonalika's stature as a globally respected Indian tractor manufacturer that is driven by an enduring commitment to create and raise greater value for farmers.

The Bombay Dyeing and Manufacturing Company Limited (Bombay Dyeing) Issues Consumer Alert Against Counterfeit 'Coral Vine' Products, Urges Customers to Verify Authenticity

“““““Hyderabad: “““““Bombay Dyeing, one of India's most trusted home textile brands with a legacy of over 147 years, has issued a public advisory cautioning consumers against the sale of counterfeit products under the name 'Coral Vine'. The brand has identified instances of unauthorised sellers offering these products in streets, shops and residential societies, allegedly using fake labels and falsely claiming an association with Bombay Dyeing.““According to the advisory issued by the company, 'Coral Vine' is no longer manufactured/sold by Bombay Dyeing, and the products currently being sold under this name by unauthorised entities are not genuine Bombay Dyeing products. The company has clarified that these sellers are not authorised to use its name or logo or claim any affiliation with the brand.““Bombay Dyeing has also raised concerns over the quality of such counterfeit products, stating that they are inferior to genuine Bombay Dyeing products and may pose potential health concerns (more particularly serious skin allergies) for consumers. The company has urged customers to remain cautious, particularly when purchasing products from temporary stalls, roadside vendors and unauthorised sellers offering unusually attractive deals.““As part of its ongoing efforts to safeguard consumers and protect the authenticity of its products, Bombay Dyeing has highlighted the following precautions:““How Consumers Can Identify Genuine Bombay Dyeing Products:““Verify the hologram: Always check for the official Bombay Dyeing hologram on the product to help verify its authenticity.““Purchase from authorised sellers: Buy Bombay Dyeing products only through authorised dealers and retailers. The details of such authorised dealers are available on the official website“https://retail.bombaydyeing.com/store-locator.““Be cautious of unauthorised sales: Bombay Dyeing does not authorise the sale of its products on footpaths, roads or in open markets.

.Canon Introduces Camera Control Centre Application to Support Video Production

“““““Hyderabad “““““Canon announced that they will begin offering “Camera Control Centre,” a free application for computers that supports the entire workflow for Canon remote cameras—from deployment and initial setup to colour matching, operation, and maintenance management, in early January 2027.““As video production equipment becomes more diverse and skilled technical personnel remain in short supply, production sites increasingly need more efficient workflows. Designed for everyone involved in video production using Canon remote cameras, this application supports deployment, initial setup, colour matching, operation, and maintenance management in a single application. It also supports Canon digital cinema cameras, professional digital video cameras, and remote camera controllers.““Seamless Operation across Workflows“Canon has offered four applications to streamline camera management and operation at video production sites: Camera Search Tool for initial setup; Remote Camera Control Application for PTZ control and recalling presets; Multi-Camera Management Application for firmware updates and configuring various camera settings; and Camera Colour Matching Application for generating and sending LUTs and matching colours by automatically detecting colour charts and comparing their colours. By integrating these applications into one, users no longer need to switch between different applications for each process or purpose. This enables seamless operation across workflows and contributes to greater operational efficiency.
